REPORT OF SCHOOL BOARD

To the Citizens of the Dublin School District:

We herewith submit the one hundred and fifth annual report of our schools.

This school year has been distinguished only by its unusual adherence to routine. There has been little in the way of weather, plumbing or heating disasters or epidemics to keep teachers and scholars from the steady program of educational growth, so carefully standardized and checked by Mr. Chase, our Superintendent of Schools.

With this standardization as a motive, the School Board has required the pupils of the 7th and 8th grades from No. 2 and No. 3 Schools to come to No. 1 School, where a teacher eminently fitted for pre-High School work has been in charge of preparing these boys and girls for High School with uniform thoroughness. In spite of obvious drawbacks and difficulties, the Board believes that this plan, still in the experimental stage, is a success.

No report of the school year could be complete without some mention of the wall at No. 1 School which not only represents the expenditure of school funds, but also of the time and thought of the Board in conference with Mr. Wilfred Fiske and Mr. Raymond Beaulieu, representatives appointed by the town as a joint committee with the School Board. The task has been done with permanence and thoroughness uppermost in the minds of the committee.

The following is our estimated Budget for the coming year:

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

To the Members of the Dublin School Board:

Wealth lays upon its possessors certain obligations to children beyond the providing of excellent buildings in which to attend school, and excellent roads over which they and their parents may travel. So great is the wealth of Dublin that, in proportion, only a mere dozen of school districts out of the 250 in New Hampshire spend less per thousand of the equalized valuations, for the current support of schools.

In view of this fact it would seem the first duty of all who are interested in child welfare to look carefully at the work done in other towns and cities of the United States and particularly in New Hampshire, and assure ourselves that in our home town our children are receiving a share of the blessings that money brings in the way of other town assets, none of which are remotely as valuable as the children.

Dublin, without undue taxation, even without greatly raising the exceedingly low tax rate, could make of its schools models of interest and achievement.

The first step is the improvement of teaching. Dublin can afford to keep such teachers as are proving valuable and to retain them against the bids of any town or city in the state. Continual checkup of the results obtained, by the use of standardized tests, is the price that must be paid for such achievement as is demanded. But the expense for such service is small, not exceeding $35.00 per year, and is already in use.

The fine teaching staff of the present year, loyally giving its very best to the children, and plainly proving month by month that education is definitely moving forward, should be retained where possible or practical. Much time and some money could be saved by the election of some one teacher whose duty is to check up results, prior to supervisory teacher meetings, unifying the method more closely than otherwise would result. This is easy in a town where the teachers live in the centralized section and travel to their schools.

In addition to the teaching and its supervision, we suggest that the excellent and thorough work done in medical inspection be extended to include health supervision by a nurse hired conjointly with some other town or towns. Clinics could be provided at which corrective work could be done for eyes; and a dental clinic would care for the many children who otherwise might not reach a dentist at such times as they should.

The providing of beautiful school grounds is excellent, at whatever the cost. There is equal need for the beautifying of the lives and outlook of children. Music should be provided, not by worn out or gone-by pianos, but by musical instruments, whether pianos or other instruments that are properly voiced and in tune. Children should grow up only in the best atmosphere, whether this refers to ventilation or to more intangible matters.

Playground space is plentiful. Playground apparatus is not expensive. Organized, rational play is educational. It is stimulating to thought and develops team spirit and fairness. A start has been made to provide adequate material for the children of Dublin. The work of playing is a worth while one. We believe that an expansion of interest in this line is eminently worth while.

Minor repairs for the ensuing year could properly include the beautifying of the grounds of the rural schools and the planning of flower gardens, particularly for such schools as are on state highways.

It is not our duty nor our desire to determine policies; but we call to your attention the marvelous opportunity that Dublin provides for child welfare and educational service, because of its conspicuous position in New Hampshire as a town of great wealth containing but a few children. Dublin can afford the best schools, as it already affords excellent roads, and beautiful grounds at the village school are already cared for. But the real wealth of Dublin is its children, and they should, as should any asset, be fully developed.

(Signed) LAWTON CHASE, Superintendent
